Computer Guidance Receives "World Class" IBM Customer Service Rating

Scottsdale, Arizona. – February 14, 2008 – Computer Guidance has received a "World Class" customer satisfaction rating from IBM for 2007. IBM requires its partners to achieve a certain level of customer satisfaction to maintain Premier Business Partner status, which is only 10-15% of all of its partners. This evaluation is done by ICR, an independent customer satisfaction auditing firm, to customers at random. The rating is on a Malcolm Baldrige scale and an NSI of 85 is the highest standard, which is considered "World Class." For 2007, Computer Guidance received a score of 85.

According to Computer Guidance President/CEO Roger Kirk, "For the third year in a row, we have been ranked in IBM's highest tier for customer satisfaction. This is a tremendous achievement and more importantly, this is what Computer Guidance customers are saying about us. Computer Guidance would like to thank all our customers for allowing us to serve you in 2007, and we look forward to developing new and better ways to support you in the year to come."

Computer Guidance has been the solution provider of choice for one out of every five of Engineering News Record's "Top 400 Contractors" and one out of every four "Top 50 Contractors." Computer Guidance software is currently the number-one solution among General Contractors with revenue of more than 250-million dollars, according to the 2006 CFMA Information Technology Survey.
